THE TOWN OF MONTICELLO

In the mid 19th century, a new American town, Monticello, came into existence in the Putah Creek Basin. It soon developed into a prosperous agricultural community during the early years of the 20th century. At this time, Berryessa Valley was a flat, fertile valley watered by Putah Creek, and the soil of the valley was considered among the most fertile in the country.

The town of Monticello stood in the center of the valley, surrounded by thousands of acres of land used to raise livestock and for dry land farming of grain. The subsequent development of a canal system for irrigation contributed to successful crops of pears, grapes, walnuts, alfalfa, and other grains, and to herds of cattle and horses.

However, you won't see the town of Monticello. As of late 1956-57 after the dam was built and the inhabitants moved from their homes and ranches the Monticello Valley was allowed to fill with water creating Lake Berryessa.

METRIC CENTURY RIDE

Although less difficult than the full century, this 100k (60 miles) is still very challenging. With undulating terrain like the full century, This ride includes the well known "Cardiac" climb. And features part of the Tour of California race course. This is a great way for the beginner or intermediate rider to experience much of the full century in a condensed version. There will be two catered rest stops including lunch and two water stops.

CENTURY RIDE

This classic 100-mile ride is a beauty and goes along much of the Tour of California race route. The ascent up Mt. George goes from almost sea level, up to 1,200 feet in elevation, and features swift descends into the Napa countryside. Lunch will be served at Moskowitz Corner. Your ride then continues up the well known "Cardiac" climb, through scenic vineyards and past moss covered oak trees. This ride includes three catered rest stops and two water stops.

POST RIDE

All rides end back at Lagoon Valley Regional Park (Peña Adobe) for post ride rewards. Feast on a delicious Tri-tip meal with all the fixings and refreshments including beer. There will be vendor booths to visit and music to enjoy or stroll the historic Peña Adobe grounds and relax with friends.
